neighbors who had witnessed the trage-dy had notified the police, and Kippie was soon locked up.
Kippie was indicted by the grand jury and was later tried in the superior court, where he was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sen-tenced to be hanged July 14. The trial was replete with sensational incidents.

The defense sought to establish the fact that, because of degeneracy, both hereditary and acquired Einstein during the trial Kippie raved and tore about the court room, apparently in an epileptic fit, and it was necessary to chain him almost continually. In the opinion of many experts, however, these fits were simulated.

in the woman's death.

Counsel for Kippie employed every legitimate means to secure a commuta-

MR. HINES MAKES A THREAT

Scroecope Used to Read the Figures in the Unsigned Bid - Labor Unions Object to Sandberg's Getting the Curbmp Contract - Evening Session.

The members of the paving commit-tee are finding the matter of awarding the paving contract even more full of dispute and vexation than had been anticipated. It was supposed that the incipal trouble would be to deter-ine whether or not the unsigned bid of Frank Hines & Co. should be considered or not. That was the lowest found still another problem to grapple with and that was how much this unwith and that was how much this unsigned bid was really for. The bid was in typewritten form but the blanks had been filled in with lead pencil and very indistinctly. At the council meeting Assistant City Clerk McMillan read the bid as $3.75 per square yard. read the bid as $3.75 per square yard. It was so published in all the papers the next day. The next lowest bid was $3.93. The morning after the council meeting Mr. Hines stated that his bid was not $3.75, but $3.90, and on the minutes of the council meeting the clerk therefore entered the bid as $3.90. The members of the committee had a hard time to determine what the bid really was. All agreed that it had been read in the council meeting as $3.75, but on examining the bid it was difficult to tell what it was. Some read but on examining the bid it was diffi-cult to tell what it was. Some read it $3.90, some $3.95 and some $3.98, with the upper half of the "8" very faint. A powerful magnifying glass was pro-cured and with its help the figures showed more clearly to be $3.90, and that was finally agreed on. The next point to be determined was whether this bid, being unsigned, should be considered at all or not. Sev-eral members of the committee de-clared fiatly that an unsigned bid is no bid at all. Others thought that as this clared flatly that an unsigned bid is no bid at all. Others thought that as this unsigned bid had been in the same envelope with two bids properly signed by Frank Hines & Co. for other work, there was no doubt that this bid was also from Frank Hines & Co. Furthermore the certified check which accompanied the bid was properly signed. It was also stated that Mr. Hines was ready to now sign the bid and enter into the contract at the figure named. Other aldermen insisted that there were plenty of bidders who would also be glad to sign the unsigned bid and enter into a contract with the city at enter into a contract with the city at the figure named in the bid.

After a long discussion it was decided to get legal advice to determine whether the unsigned bid should be considered or not. The city attorney was sent for.

The paving committee meanwhile took up the bids for the granite curbing and here more trouble confronted them. The lowest bid for this work was John Sandberg & Co. at 89 cents per linear foot. A committee of the Stone Cutters' union appeared before the committee to protest against letting the contract to Mr. Sandberg on the ground that he employs scabs and is not friendly to the union. It was claimed that he employs non-union men in his work at the school of mines building.

On behalf of Mr. Sandberg it was urged that he pays union wages. The paving committee took the view that it has no choice but to let the contract to the lowest bidder and if Mr. Sandberg gives sufficient and proper bonds to do the work the city has no right to refuse him the contract. If the city should refuse to let the contract to the lowest bidder it was urged that the Main street property owners would have legal cause for refusing to pay for the work. The council would see that union wages are paid, but could not go farther than that.

It was finally decided to recommend to the council that the contract for the On behalf of Mr. Sandberg it was

It is also required that the curbing work be kept 10 days ahead of the paving and be entirely completed by Oct. 15, a penalty of $20 per day being imposed for each day after Oct. 15 that the work remains unfinished. The sample of curbing to the council that the contract for the after Oct. 15 that the work remains unfinished. The sample of curbing furnished by Mr. Sandberg was examined and approved. It comes from Elk Park station and is good stone.

It was recommended that the contract for the catch basins be awarded William Harkins, whose bid was $2,100 and much the lowest.

City Attorney De Wolfe had not been found and the committee did not choose to decide on the paying bids un-

The committee met again last evening. City Attorney DeWoife was out of the city and Assistant City Attorney.

of the city and Assistant City Attorney Dierks was asked to give an opinion. The question asked was whether the unsigned bid in question is valid and whether if the bid is accepted by the council the cost of the contract could be assessed up to the property. Mr. Dierks gave the following opinion:

"This bid is in the nature of a contract. The fact that accompanying this unsigned bid were two signed bids which were pinned to it and in the same envelope cuts no figure, neither does the fact that a certified check accompanied the unsigned bid. If this bid were signed it would be a contract to enter into another contract to do to enter into another contract to do the work. This bid should not be accepted by the council, nor should it be considered as a bid. Everything must be signed to be binding. A verbel contract is not allowable under the statutes. The certified check cannot, under utes. The certified check cannot, under any circumstances, be considered a part of this bid. Each of you gentlemen and each member of the council may be perfectly satisfied in your own minds as to the party making this bid, but that can't satisfy the court which would only consider what appears. We cannot take into consideration anything outside of the contract. We cannot introduce any verbal stipulations in a written contract and this contract, being unsigned, could only be a verbal contract at the best."

Alderman Hellig said that as this opinion throws out the unsigned bid, he now moved that the committee recommend that the bid be let to the lowest bidder, Sias F. King, whose bid is $3.92.

A "DEGENERATE" HANGED. Strenuous Efforts of H s Counsel to Get Him Off.

Hartford, Conn., July 19.—Thomas F. Kippie, the wife murderer, was hanged at the state penal institution here at 12:36 o'clock this morning.

Kippie was a Scotchman, 41 years old, and on the night of Jan. 31, 1896, brutally stabbed his wife to death. The crime was committed at the Kipple home in New Haven, and was the outcome of a long series of family quarrels, for which liquor was mainly responsible. Both Kipple and his wife were addicted to strong drink. Two nights before the tragedy Kip-pie came home drunk and was soon in-volved in a quarrel with his wife. The latter secured the upper hand in a hard struggle and tied her husband to a bed post, where he was held a pris-oner for 24 hours.

Finally, having sobered up, he managed to free himself, and attacked his wife with a butcher knife. He wounded her slightly, and would probably have killed her then had not a neighbor interfered. Mrs. Kippje took advantage of the opportunity, and left the house.

In the meanwhile, Kippie, who was in a paroxysm of rage, fought desper-ately with the neighbor, and succeed-ed in slashing him badly in the eye. He then made for his wife, and, catching her in a corner of the yard, plunged the knife repeatedly into her breast. She fell to the ground lifeless. Having satisfied himself that his wife was dead, he threw away his weapon and started to make good his escape, but corner West Park St., Butte. Hennessy's
